 . OnePlus 5T rumors: Flashing a new OnePlus 5T boot animation at OTA update? OnePlus 5T leaks are flooding the internet. Today we saw the Chinese site TENAA listing the codename "Asura" for the new OnePlus 5T.
 While that codename was originally reported to be an incremental bump in the Pixel range, the code name seems to point towards a new flagship which will be arriving soon. While the codename Asura suggests an internal codename for OnePlus that only one person in the entire company knows about, it seems that the Chinese leakster indeed has a solid source.
 But that's not all. While the unboxing teardown suggests that the only major upgrade is the screen size, the phone is actually getting a power boost and a new frame on top of the OnePlus 5T. The phone doesn't feature any visible changes, but according to the leak there will be a new boot animation showing a blank screen with the OnePlus logo and a new frame on top. While the specs are mostly the same as the OnePlus 5T, it's not clear whether OnePlus will be updating the Oxygen OS again or will just be moving to the new Android 9 Oreo with all the expected software changes. The smartphone should arrive towards the end of the year.

 IRVINE is set to leave Rangers as United States international Steve Clark skips out on Motherwell this week. Clark, 28, was set to make his debut on Sunday against Motherwell, but has been called up by LA Galaxy to join their squad in Miami for their CONCACAF League tie against Club Tijuana.
 Rangers are trying to loan their former midfielder to Besiktas in Turkey - but the player is intent on playing in the States. e79caf774b

Removes-scraps-css-in-html-comments.Q: CSS positioned divs not colliding correctly I'm working on a web page that shows a lot of divs (about 4-5 rows or so). There are titles and buttons that are positioned on the top of each div. Basically it is the same page but with added divs. The issue is that the buttons and titles are pushed down a few pixels because there are other divs underneath that are overflowing. I have tried floating the divs, and using the "Z-index" property on them but it doesn't seem to work, even when the "z-index" property is higher than the other divs on top of them. The page is really long (more then 1 page), so I can't give it to you as an example. I have provided a link to a Google Drive version of it. I can do it, if you provide me an answer to a Google question. A: You should definitely consider using a tag to group the divs into logical groups so you can apply more specific rules to the content within these specific groups. You could use an HTML5 tag to have better control over how and where your page is broken, and a CSS reset to make sure all browser defaults are removed. If you have a very large set of divs, you could load a JSON file from Google Drive (document) and read that into JavaScript, like this:

function loadScript(url, id) { var script = document.createElement('script'); script.src = url; if (id) script.id = id;
