By 2020, many suburbs of Cape Town will have 50,000 residents per square kilometre. The urban sprawl will be so wide and stretched that the suburbs will completely disappear. Residential areas will have so little space that if one 'colonies' being built high on a hill, then there is no way they can be connected to the road network because of the steep slope. To prevent urban sprawl, in 1925 the Government approved the first planned neighbourhood in Cape Town. Completed in 1925, this is currently the last suburb on the South Coast. Unfortunately, it is far from being the first planned neighbourhood. Although it was located near Khayelitsha, it was established to serve Cape Town's urban sprawl. The Capsa suburbs were part of the original 1925 plan. Residents were required to move to the suburbs if they did not want to work in Cape Town and did not want to live around Khayelitsha. The suburbs were built especially for those people. The roads in Capsa are very small. It is considered the narrowest suburb in Cape Town. However, the house designs are of a traditional American-style townhouse. The houses are placed in small clusters, with narrow alleys between them to ensure privacy. The fields surrounding the suburb are used for farming. Apart from some people living in the suburbs of the commune, most residents live in suburbs such as Mianus, Garnet Valley and Montclair. The suburbs of Picadilly and Salt River are also located near Khayelitsha. The corridors that link the suburbs to the West Rand are very congested because of the ongoing Western Cape Development Project. Since it was the first planned neighbourhood, it is the most desirable suburb today, which means it is today's best buy. A mistake that was made by the City of Cape Town to establish the suburb, was to build it after the planned Ngqanshi. It was supposed to be built before the Ngqanshi. This was because what was needed was a larger space for townhouses to be built in Ngqanshi, in order to boost the urbanisation rate of this area so that it could benefit from the infrastructure infrastructure that will be built in that area. But unfortunately, the Urban Development Commission approved the suburb of Capsa in 1924. So if the suggested idea had been followed, the suburb of Ngqanshi would have

In the first game of the SUGURI series, the results of the huge battle between Enma and the gods is seen in the world. There are a lot of differences between the world before and after the battle. Then a man named Enma, who is an adopted son of the gods, falls in love with an animal. Because of his power, the gods become scared and hide him. He plans revenge on the gods and fights a new battle with them. Six seasons later, the world has changed, and a band of humans – the descendants of the gods – live peacefully. Even though he appears before humanity as a human, Enma has an aura of a god – and so he is more powerful than humans. Because of that, the gods want to conceal him from humanity, but at the same time, they also cannot forgive him. Humans were betrayed by the gods, and the world was in turmoil. But if Enma were to end all of this confusion, they want to love him more than they do right now. Enma's mission, according to the people, is to "save the gods." Enma is perhaps the world's strongest living man. If he is the god of justice, Enma's goal is that humans will live peacefully and without wars. He wants to live as a god-human. After a long journey, the world where Enma fights will be changed. Your journey with Enma will begin here! What's new: • Course of Enma's movements are different between the games of the SUGURI series. • Seasonal change of battles with Enma. Recommended for fans of DEKU, nozomi, and SUGURI games. Changelog: Version 1.1.0: • Fixed various bugs. • Upgraded the RAM of the Vita to 512MB so that you can enjoy the original content. Description: Characters A character that is the result of combining one of the three gods – Enma, Yami and Shikigami – with the god of love. Their characters are slightly more agile than other characters, and thus, their potential is greater. Enma's power to destroy depends on the level he is, and also differs for each season. They can also be found in each of the six seasons. Instructions: Before starting, please read the "
