By.Q: How to deploy a website from Spring Boot + MongoDB. I need to deploy a java application to internet, from Spring Boot and MongoDB. I've modified some configs, deployed the app in test project, but I need to add a new URL for test site, but Spring keeps sending me a 404 error for that URL. In my local project, I'm using HttpURLConnection and it's working correctly (with some security certificates). I really don't know how to overcome this, and get my project working. Thanks a lot. A: It happened because the application is configured to not use ssl. Just right click on the project and go to Properties > Deployment > Configure :
Phosphate transporter genes from Arabidopsis thaliana: evidence for a symplastic route and functional organization. The phosphate supply of the plant cell is regulated by two symplastic and two apoplastic phosphate transporters. The transporters belong to two distinct families, differentially targeted to the plasma membrane (Pht1) or tonoplast (Pht2). In this study, the expression of phosphate transporter genes from Arabidopsis thaliana (A. thaliana) was examined at the transcriptional level. The results indicate that different phosphate transporters are expressed during plant development in discrete temporal and spatial patterns. Northern blot analysis revealed that Pht1.1 and Pht1.2, from members of the plant transporter (PT) 1 family, are expressed in roots, whereas the genes from the plant transporter 2 (PT2) family, Pht2.1 and Pht2.2, are expressed only in vascular tissues. This finding is supported by in situ hybridization experiments. Taken together, the data indicate that the root is the site of phosphate translocation out of the seed. The expression of Pht1.1 and
