[img] Viewer Software Releases - Windows Xmas - November 30, 2014, teamviewer starts releasing their newest Windows version which will be the first to run on Windows 10 OS. in one of the of the videos the sys admin of the company says that it will be a fantastic edition to any Windows vista or Windows 7 operating system [img] we're not sure what that 'fantastic edition' is - by that, we're guessing that the video is referring to the new VP8/Vorbis format that's been added to the codecs of the free version, along with a new interface that's supposed to be a lot more common-user-friendly than the one of the paid version. Well, if that's what it is, it might actually be a big deal for free users, but for the paid users? Not really, as the paid version has all the features that free users have (everything that isn't commercial), and from the looks of it, there are no changes/features to talk about. But if it is, it could be a very welcome one for people who are used to the old interface in the paid version.
